Here we are... Friday, July 14, 2006 and there's no definitive end in sight, mon cherie, to our dismay... As my life needs absolute direction I have kicked my plans into 4th gear for moving to NYC... there's only one more gear to go before I jump in my car and leave. That last gear is the lack of action on your part to make me downshift and change direction. I still have faith that you will interrupt this flow that has occurred. However, this interruption must occur within the next 4 days. There are no more feasible reasons why it cannot occur in the immediacy, and if it does not, I will have to admit defeat, surrender to the universe, and wish you well... pack my belongs, and my car, and recreate myself amongst the diversity of NYC... please don't make me do that, Alex... pleaaaaaaase....

As much as I would love to tell you all the different ways I love you and all the different ways I want to show you, it is much too difficult to entertain those feelings right now, so you will have to create those thoughts in your own mind... it should be simple... because my feelings for you are equal to yours for me... the power is with you, Alex, to make this dream of ours the fairytale we always wished for upon that bright, happy star in the sky... the one you always prayed to while waiting for sleep to overcome your body... and release your soul for your escape to that neverland.... To cultivate it while you are there and to learn how to bring it back with you... to sculpt the players, and the experiences, and the feelings for everyone involved... to know that you CAN create this utopia for yourself, and others who believe it is possible... even those who don't believe can still be persuaded to explore the possibility, if coaxed with the right type of information... who would NOT want that kind of life that you and I dream about?? And for us to be sooooo close, yet so far is torturous.... It is inhumane to do this to ourselves, Alex... sooooo cruel..... Let's end our torture shall we??

I will end my torture one way or another this month. I will move out of Maine this month. I don't know where I will move to yet... that is pending... it will either be to NYC or wherever you take me... I prefer the latter than the former, but it is not really my choice at this point... you know how you can control this situation and make it exactly what YOU want it to be... this is your ball of clay, Alex... make it what you will... be sure you first consider the ripples you will create with whatever choice you choose because, as you already know, they will be lifelong...

I am leaving for NYC tomorrow afternoon, provided my friend was successful in getting me some $ for travel expenses... if he was, I will be leaving as soon as it arrives which I'm hoping is noonish. I expect to be returning no later than Monday night as I need to be at court Tuesday morning at 8:30 for my eviction proceedings... after Tuesday morning's agenda, I'm not really sure what my life will entail... that is left to be seen, I suppose...

What role will you play, Alex?? Do I need to tell you what role I have chosen for you?? A little birdie is telling me to relax and trust because you do know, and you agree, and you have taken the bull by the horns, and have made choices that will bring forth the next, and final step, in creating this world for ourselves... Are you ready, My Love?

Bring it on!!!

Please bring it on... I beg you... I will honor, and adore, and worship you for all eternity.

I believe if this was a chess game we would be at check... who will get checkmate?? You, or NYC?

Make your move... and Make It Count!!

Gina
