Linda,

I'm sorry to hear your sister is having trouble. I think its something in the water... *wink

I really don't know what I expected you to do when I left that message... I guess just letting everyone know that Jenna needs whatever support that can be offered to her right now was my only objective. She is not speaking with me right now (going on day #4) but I know she will get past that when its time.

Although my life continues to be lively, I am doing well with all things considered.

Take care. Love to you all.

Gina

Gina- my sis is in trouble in Bangor so I am in and out. Not sure how to help Jen, if you think of something, let me know. We all know she needs to make some pretty serious survival decisions at this point, and I truly believe she knows what they are- unless her vision is totally clouded by the substances, and if it is she needs treatment. Let me know what's going on when you can.

I thought this would be useful as well, if not for your self but for another young woman you may know who would benefit from it.

Loving you....

Gina
