Some people say that one person cannot change the world ... this is not true because indeed it is only one person who always starts the changes that change the world ...

We may not be able to change the world, but we can change ourselves and model those changes for others ... our gift is our strength and courage that help others to change ...

Hello, I am seeking a friend who can hang out and have good time, would love if there is something that I can do to help children but don't think I can change the world because I'm not God.
