Good for you !! if they violated due process then you should definitely continue to pursue your case ... I am experiencing many agencies that ignore due process at our detriment and then refuse to give us the required hearings to challenge their illegal actions ...

We need to join together, stick together and take these bastards down !

I'm currently challenging the state of Maine in 'criminal' driving cases that occurred as a direct result of DMV not following due process and suspending my license without notice or hearing ... and now I'm facing 2 OAS charges plus other charges for something that should've never happened ...

It's been a year and I've successfully challenged their case so far and will be going back to court on the 23rd to argue my dismissal for the D.A.'s failure to produce discovery/evidence after receiving 5 notices in 12 months ...

well I am suing the SSA for NOT correctly handling the onset date (disability) appeal and the ALJ abusing her power to look at and consider if I am actually disabled. They have (SSA) recently put my case in remand because their lawyer found mistakes in my case / procedure (in my favor too) This has been ongoing into the 5 yr. I have written my Congressmen, the President and Vice President... Not sure if any of it helped except the US District Court law suit which definitely got their attention, lol...

Hi there ! no, you have not corresponded with me before that I know of ...

I am in a battle with the state right now ...

What's your case about with the Feds ??
