JOY

Joy is the morning,
Dawning
in a new day way,
Unlike forgotten yesterday.
Joy is opening eyelids
And sky-lids,
The flower blossom presents.
Joy is a breakfast bird song,
A chipmunk prattle,
The insects' busy battle.

Joy is the cessation of old dreams,
The realization of new dreams
Being hatched in the sunlight,
An erasure of night,
A new secret being born
To replace a shattered one.

Spring joys are lilacs blooming,
Daffodils and tulips waving
To a passing breeze, or bent
Under a drizzled beginning
Waiting for rays of nourishment
And your or my compliments.

Then, there's the joy of happy
Goslings chasing mother into a pond,
Thrice paddling to her strokes,
The joy of gaping sparrow chicks
As if awaiting a dentists' drill,
The joy of a fuzzy, suckling kitten row,
Or a well done chore, complete
But ever changing, still.

Other joys, man-made and not,
Happen along a daily routine
Between nights of joy while learning
And growing closer,
Yet never accustomed to you.
These joys enthrall and embrace me
Because you and I and life are Lovers. The grandest of all joys
Is sharing them
and a kiss with you.

Things are still in the planning stages, but the venue, date, and time for a celebration of my dad's life have been set. We will be gathering on Sunday May 31st from 1pm until 4pm at the American Legion Post 179, 79 Legion Memorial Drive South China, Maine.

Please share with any you feel would be interested in attending, speaking, or otherwise participating.

Thanks,
Nathan
